

Since the Wisconsin No Call List was activated, my husband and I can spend our Sunday afternoons and evenings, and our daily meal times in peace. We used to receive between 4 and 6 calls daily during meal times. Even with the aid of Caller ID, the constant ringing of the phone was extremely annoying.

Please tell the banking industry (and all the other businesses that telemarket) that we NEVER purchase anything over the telephone, and if this change is approved, would not consider dealing with the caller in future considerations. In my estimation, people who do so are either impulsive, which means that they are not good consumers, or lonely.
